<Reasons for Revisions>

The financial results of the period ended September 30, 2019 were greater than the company's plan due to expanding production of high-end devices utilizing advanced processes such as 5G-related semiconductors. We expect 5G-related demand, which drove performance in the first half, to be a reaction in this arena in the short term. On the other hand, demand for memory testers, which remained weak this period, shows signs of picking up slightly in the second half.

Based on these industry trends and our business results so far, we are revising our full-year consolidated business forecast for the current fiscal year as above.
